#wineIQ Domaine Sainte Cécile du Parc SONATINA 2012: Oh, yum! This is a gorgeous glass of grape goodness! A traditional Rhône blend of 80% Syrah and the rest Cinsault, but what makes it so approachable is a liberal dash of new oak that puts a sweet, toasty veneer over the complex layers of dark, currant-infused fruit, slate, mocha and dark chocolate. Ripe and spicy (baking spices rather than pepper), it's packed with chewy, dark, mineral-laced fruit all wrapped around a zesty/earthy core. Approachable now, but will certainly reward another 5 years or so in bottle. // Score 92 // Tasted by Silvana Lau

#wineIQ Domaine Sainte Cécile du Parc NOTES D'ORPHEE 2012: Bordeaux meets Rhone! Mostly Syrah (90%) with a drizzle of Cabernet Franc (10%), the Notes d'Orphee offers up an aromatic profile showcasing dark plum, garrigue and mild games/flinty notes. Still a pup and needing a few years' age (or a good sloshing in one of those Final Touch Conundrum decanters), it nevertheless delivers powerful, concentrated, meaty flavours with a healthy dash of white paper on the trailing edge. // Score 90 // Tasted by Silvana Lau
